

I love this state, but am very disappointed in the direction it has been headed. I have two degree's and hopefully adding a third to that list, all from Connecticut institutions. My family has lived here since the state was founded, but I find myself considering leaving for New Hampshire. Between the constant attack on my 2nd amendment rights and out of control taxes, I question why I would want to start a business here or even continue to call this my home. My significant other is completing her medical residence over the next 3 years, if we do not see progress by the end of her program we will be exiting this state and taking our high paying positions and taxes with us.
